

Design Tip
 Throw in a wild card. As a contrast to the soft-spoken decor, the designer chose a blackened-steel accent table from R Hughes, which functions almost like a piece of artwork.

Store it
 Kingdom Woodworks designed the custom cabinetry to match the white oak on the desk. They made sure it has storage for a printer, files, and a charging station.

Get to work
 The oak and brass desk by Julian Chichester started it all. "It was modern and feminine at the same time," says Amtower. "I found the desk first and then matched the finish for the cabinetry."

Sit in style
 White chairs with gold frames, from RH, are symmetrical anchors to the room.

See-through shape
 Amtower went understated with the RH light fixtures, saying, "The glass layered perfectly in front of the cabinetry and didn't distract from the details there."

This project is a gold winner in our 2023 Georgia Design Awards. For more winners, see the winter issue of Atlanta Magazine's HOME.

NATURAL LIGHT

Keeping it simple but elegant, interior designer Shawn Amtower relied on two winning surfaces for this soft and serene office: white oak and gold/brass tones

BY LISA MOWRY